Capital: Little Rock Time: GMT – 6

Background: Arkansas entered the Union as the 25th state on June 15, 1836. It was part of the Confederacy during the American Civil War (1861-1865). Long known as an agricultural state with diverse mineral resources, Arkansas by the 1990s had an economy that was dominated by the manufacturing and service sectors, though by most standards it is one of the poorest states in the United States. The name of the state is taken from the Arkansas River, which was named after the indigenous Arkansa people; the s was added as a plural, and the French pronunciation was retained. Arkansas is also known as the "Land of Opportunity". Its major cities are Little Rock (the capital), Fort Smith, North Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Jonesboro, and Fayetteville.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Arkansas had 2,350,725 inhabitants, an increase of 2.8 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 2,522,819. The average population density in 1990 was 17 people per sq km (44 per sq mi). Whites made up 82.7 per cent of the population and blacks 15.9 per cent; additional population groups included 12,733 Native Americans (including Inuit and Aleuts) and 12,530 Asians and Pacific Islanders. Nearly 20,000 Arkansas residents were of Latino origin.

Location: Arkansas (state), one of the Midwestern states of the United States, bordered on the north and north-east by Missouri; on the east by Tennessee and Mississippi; on the south by Louisiana; on the south-west by Texas; and on the west by Oklahoma. The Mississippi River forms virtually the entire eastern boundary.

Area: Arkansas has an area of 137,741 sq km (53,182 sq mi), the 28th largest state in the United States; 7.1 per cent of the land is owned by the federal government. Arkansas is roughly square in shape, although narrower in the south, and its extreme dimensions are 386 km (240 mi) from north to south and 444 km (276 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from 17 m (55 ft) along the Ouachita River, near the Louisiana border, to a maximum of 839 m (2,753 ft) at Magazine Mountain. The mean elevation is about 200 m (650 ft).

Industries: Arkansas is rich in mineral resources, chiefly oil, natural gas, coal, and bauxite. The state also contains commercial quantities of diamonds, granite, gypsum, marble, mercury, soapstone, vanadium, and bromine. Farming accounts for less than 4 per cent of the state's annual gross product. The state is a national leader in the production of rice, soya beans, and cotton, although significant quantities of wheat, hay, sorghum, spinach, peaches, and tomatoes are also grown. The state's timber resources are considerable. The principal types are oak, hickory, cypress, and, especially, pine, which is harvested increasingly from tree farms. Leading manufactured items include food products, petrochemicals, paper and wood products, clothing, and textiles. Electronic equipment is also a major industry.
