Capital: Denver Time: GMT - 7

Background: Colorado entered the Union on August 1, 1876, as the 38th state. Long known for its mineral resources and livestock ranching, it had by the 1990s a diversified economy with substantial light industrial development and a growing tourist industry based on its scenic and recreational attractions. The name of the state is taken from the Colorado River, which was named by Spanish explorers and means "red coloured". Colorado is also known as the "Centennial State". Its major cities are Denver (the capital), Colorado Springs, Aurora, Lakewood, Pueblo, Arvada, and Fort Collins.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Colorado had 3,294,394 inhabitants, an increase of 14 per cent over 1980. The estimated population for 1997 was 3,892,644. The average population density in 1990 was about 12 people per sq km (32 per sq mi). Whites made up 88.2 per cent of the population and blacks 4 per cent; additional population groups included 27,271 Native Americans, 11,402 people of Japanese descent, 11,339 people of Korean background, 8,695 people of Chinese descent, and 7,210 people of Vietnamese extraction. Approximately 424,300 people, or 12 per cent of the total population, were of Latino ancestry.

Location: Colorado, one of the Midwestern states of the United States, bordered on the north by Wyoming and Nebraska; on the east by Nebraska and Kansas; on the south by Oklahoma and New Mexico; and on the west by Utah. The Rocky Mountains extend across the centre of the state from north to south.

Area: With an area of 269,618 sq km (104,100 sq mi), Colorado is the eighth-largest state in the United States; 29.8 per cent of the land area is owned by the federal government. The state is rectangular in shape and measures 444 km (276 mi) from north to south and 623 km (387 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from 1,021 m (3,350 ft) on the Arkansas River to 4,399 m (14,433 ft) at the summit of Mount Elbert. The approximate mean elevation of 2,073 m (6,800 ft) is greater than that of any other state in the United States.

Industries: While gold is what drew the first miners to Colorado, the production of fossil fuels is by far the most valuable resource extraction done in the state today, representing more than three-quarters of the state's mineral output. Natural gas is the leading mineral product, followed by petroleum and bituminous coal. Also present are silver, gold, vanadium, lead, copper, zinc, clay, stone, oil-bearing shale, and molybdenum.

Leading agricultural products are beef cattle, corn, hay, wheat, and milk. Other crops include potatoes, vegetables, and fruit.

Manufacturing in Colorado is dominated by the processing of local raw materials and by technology-dependent light industries. Leading manufactured products include scientific instruments, industrial machinery, food, printed items, manufactured metals, electronics, and transport (especially aerospace) equipment.
