Capital: Tallahassee Time: GMT - 5

Background: Florida entered the Union on March 3, 1845, as the 27th state. It was a member of the Confederacy during the American Civil War (1861-1865). Florida's main economic growth began in the early 20th century, and by the 1990s it had a diversified economy, noted especially for the production of citrus fruit, vegetables, and electronic equipment. Millions of tourists visit the state each year, lured by the warm, sunny climate and attractions such as Walt Disney World near Orlando and the John F. Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral. Florida's population nearly trebled between 1960 and 1990, many of the new inhabitants being retired people from other parts of the United States and immigrants from Caribbean countries. In 1513 the Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de León named the region Florida (Spanish, "flowery"), either because the vegetation included many flowers or because the time of his visit was Easter week (Spanish, Pascua florida). Florida is known as the "Sunshine State". Major cities are Tallahassee (the capital), Jacksonville (the largest city), Miami, Tampa, St Petersburg, and Hialeah.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Florida had 12,937,926 inhabitants, an increase of 32.7 per cent over 1980. During this period Florida was one of the country's fastest-growing states. The population estimate for 1997 was 14,653,945. The average population density in 1990 was 83 people per sq km (216 per sq mi). Whites made up 83.1 per cent of the population and blacks 13.6 per cent. Additional population groups included 35,461 Native Americans, 31,457 Asian Indians, 31,945 people of Filipino ancestry, 30,737 people of Chinese origin, 16,346 people of Vietnamese background, 12,404 people of Korean origin, and 8,505 people of Japanese descent. About 1,574,000 Floridians, or 12.2 per cent of the population, were of Latino origin. Important ethnic groups included the Seminole, many of whom live on five reservations in the state, and Cubans, who are concentrated in metropolitan areas such as Miami and Tampa. Tarpon Springs was notable as a centre for descendants of Greek immigrants. In the mid-1990s Florida had a greater portion of its population over the age of 65 (19 per cent) than any other state in the United States. This figure reflected the large number of people who moved there after retirement.

Location: Florida, one of the southern Atlantic coast states of the United States and the southernmost mainland state. It is bordered on the north by Alabama and Georgia; on the east by the Atlantic Ocean; on the south by the Straits of Florida (separating it from Cuba); and on the west by the Gulf of Mexico and Alabama.

Area: Florida has an area of 155,368 sq km (59,988 sq mi); 9.4 per cent of its land area is owned by the federal government. Florida is mainly a large peninsula that extends about 610 km (380 mi) between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. Much of the rest of the state forms the narrow Panhandle between Georgia and Alabama on the north and the Gulf of Mexico on the south. The lowest point is sea level, and the highest point is only 105 m (345 ft) above sea level. The average elevation of the state is just 30 m (100 ft). The extreme dimensions of Florida, which has a coastline of 2,173 km (1,350 mi), are about 725 km (450 mi) from north to south and about 738 km (471 mi) from east to west.

Industries: Florida's principal minerals are limestone, phosphate rock, oil, and fuller's earth. Other mineral resources include natural gas, sand and gravel, sulphur, peat, kaolin (a kind of clay), zircon, titanium concentrate, crushed stone, masonry cement, ilmenite (a combination of iron, titanium, and oxygen), and rutile (titanium dioxide).

Florida is a major agricultural producer, ranking ninth among the states in terms of annual farm income. The principal farm product is citrus fruit, particularly oranges—Florida leads the nation in the production of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines—although dairy products and beef cattle are also important commodities. The state is second only to California in the production of melons and vegetables, including beans, green peppers, cucumbers, celery, potatoes, cantaloupes, and watermelons. Other major crops are tomatoes, soya beans, corn, tobacco, peanuts, pecans, and field-grown flowers.

There is a thriving forestry industry concentrated in the north of the state; the main trees harvested are slash pine, oak, and hickory. The state ranks high in the value of its annual fish catch. Principal marine species landed include shrimp, lobsters, crabs, clams, oysters, swordfish, mackerel, mullet, and red snapper.

Leading manufactured goods are electronic equipment, transport equipment, precision instruments, printed materials, and processed food. Leading food products include concentrated orange juice and other citrus items, canned and frozen vegetables, and prepared seafood. Among the state's other important products are fertilizer, plastics, pharmaceuticals, tobacco products, clothing, industrial machinery, and paper products.
