Capital: Boise Time: GMT - 7

Background: Idaho entered the Union on July 3, 1890, as the 43rd state. Idaho has traditionally been known for its agricultural, forest, and mineral resources. By the 1990s, however, services and manufacturing had supplanted agriculture as the state's leading economic sectors. Tourism is increasingly important to the economy; many visitors are lured to Idaho each year by the unspoiled beauty of the mountain wilderness areas. The name of the state was coined in 1860 by George M. Willing, an unsuccessful candidate for congressional delegate from the mining region of Pikes Peak. Idaho's nickname is the "Gem State". Its major cities are Boise (the capital), Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Nampa, Lewiston, and Twin Falls.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Idaho had 1,006,749 inhabitants, an increase of 6.7 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 1,210,232. The average population density in 1990 was about 5 people per sq km (12 per sq mi). Whites made up 94.4 per cent of the population and blacks 0.3 per cent; additional population groups included 13,594 Native Americans and 2,719 people of Japanese descent. About 52,900 people were of Latino, mainly Mexican, origin. Among the principal Native American groups were the Nez Percé and Shoshone.

Location: Idaho, one of the western states of the United States, bounded on the north by British Columbia (Canada); on the east by Montana and Wyoming; on the south by Utah and Nevada; and on the west by Oregon and Washington. Part of the eastern boundary of Idaho is formed by the Continental Divide (the crest of the Rocky Mountains). The Snake River forms part of the western boundary of the state.

Area: Idaho has an area of 216,456 sq km (83,574 sq mi); 60.6 per cent of the land is owned by the federal government. The state is roughly triangular in shape, and its extreme dimensions are about 777 km (483 mi) from north to south and about 496 km (308 mi) from east to west. Its elevations range from 216 m (710 ft) along the Snake River at Lewiston to 3,859 m (12,662 ft) at the summit of Borah Peak. The approximate mean elevation is about 1,500 m (5,000 ft).

Industries: The state usually ranks among US leaders in yearly silver, antimony, vanadium, and garnet production, and is among the nation's principal sources of phosphates, lead, gold, and zinc. Other minerals found include antimony and molybdenum.

Agriculture accounts for about 10 per cent of the annual gross state product. The state typically ranks first in the nation for potato production and third as a producer of sugar beet. Other important agricultural products are beef cattle, hay, wheat, milk, and barley.

Forestry is an important industry, especially in the north. Most of the timber harvested is softwood; Douglas fir, ponderosa pine, white fir, and white pine are the main commercial species.

Leading manufacturing industries are food processing and the manufacture of timber products, chemicals, and paper goods.
