Background: For most of its history since independence from British administration in 1946, Jordan was ruled by King HUSSEIN (1953-1999). A pragmatic ruler, he successfully navigated competing pressures from the major powers (US, USSR, and UK), various Arab states, Israel, and a large internal Palestinian population, through several wars and coup attempts. In 1989 he resumed parliamentary elections and gradually permitted political Economy: Jordan is a small Arab country with inadequate supplies of water and other natural resources such as oil. The Persian Gulf crisis, which began in August 1990, aggravated Jordan's already serious economic problems, forcing the government to shelve the IMF program, stop most debt payments, and suspend rescheduling negotiations. Aid from Gulf Arab states, worker remittances, and trade contracted; and refugees flooded the country, producing serious balance-of-payments problems, stunting GDP growth, and straining government resources. The economy rebounded in 1992, largely due to the influx of capital repatriated by workers returning from the Gulf. After averaging 9% in 1992-95, GDP growth averaged only 2% during 1996-99. In an attempt to spur growth, King ABDALLAH has undertaken limited economic reform, including partial privatization of some state owned enterprises and Jordan's entry in January 2000 into the World Trade Organization (WTO). Debt, poverty, and unemployment are fundamental ongoing economic problems. Industries: phosphate mining, petroleum refining, cement, potash, light manufacturing, tourism

Today Royal Jordanian, is one of the largest passenger carriers in the the Middle East, with daily services to the U.S, Europe, The Middle East and the Far East. The success of RJ in just over 33 years of operation attests to its efficient and innovative management. The airline grew rapidly from a pair of

Handled Page Dart Heralds of RAF vintage and two Super DC-7 .in its first year of operation to an impressive 17 - aircraft fleet. Today there are five Lockheed TriStar L1011s; six Airbus A310s; three Airbus A320s, and three Boeing 70Fs. The golden crown of the Hashemite Court, the emblem of Royal Jordanian, flies from Bangkok, Singapore, Jakarta and Kuala Lumpur in the east, to New York, Montreal and Toronto in the west. The airline charts more than 140,000 unduplicated route kilometers covering 46 cities spread over four continents. King Hussein's love of flying has been a continuing and inspiring force, which led to the influential growth, of not only Royal Jordanian, but also the entire aviation industry in Jordan, through his constant and active support. Within 32 years of flying, Royal Jordanian was carrying 1.27 million passengers and more than 66,000 tons of air cargo, contributing significantly to Jordan's economic growth. By the time it celebrated its Silver Jubilee in 1988, Royal Jordanian had become a major force in Middle Eastern aviation and tourism. Promoting Jordan as a tourist and business destination fills every moment of the airline's time. As Royal Jordanian looks to the future, the methods by which it has developed over the last 25 years such as route expansion, competitive fares and, service innovations, and tourism promotion - remain the basic corporate guidelines. The Queen Alia International Airport (QAIA) is an ultra modern facility comprised of two terminals with ample room to accommodate anticipated growth. On the futuristic bridge linking the mirror-image terminals there is an extensive Duty Free Shop catering to the desires of both the departing and incoming passenger.
