Capital: Carson City Time: GMT - 8

Background: Nevada entered the Union on October 31, 1864, as the 36th state. It has long been known for its mineral wealth and for its gambling casinos and scenic landscapes that attract millions of tourists. By the early 1990s, however, Nevada had developed a relatively diversified economy; tourism, mining, and ranching remain important, but manufacturing and construction have grown rapidly. In the 1990s Nevada had both the fastest-growing economy and the fastest-growing population in the country, and the economic boom was without precedent in the state. The state's name is taken from the Sierra Nevada (Spanish nevada, "snow covered"). Nevada is known as the "Silver State". Its major cities are Carson City (the capital), Las Vegas, Reno, Henderson, Sparks, and North Las Vegas.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Nevada had 1,201,833 inhabitants, an increase of 50.1 per cent over 1980. During the 1980s and 1990s it was the fastest-growing state in the United States, and in 1997 the estimated population was 1,676,809. In 1990 the average population density was four people per sq km (11 per sq mi). The vast majority of the state's population was concentrated in the Las Vegas and Reno metropolitan areas; in most of the remainder of the state population density was 2 people per sq km (fewer than 1 per sq mi). Whites made up 84.3 per cent of the population and blacks 6.6 per cent. Additional population groups included 19,377 Native Americans, 12,048 people of Filipino background, and 6,618 people of Chinese descent. Approximately 124,400 people, or about 10.4 per cent of the population, were of Latino (primarily Mexican) background.

Location: Nevada, one of the western states of the United States, bordered on the north by Oregon and Idaho, on the east by Utah and Arizona, and on the south-west and west by California.

Area: With an area of 286,367 sq km (110,567 sq mi), Nevada is the seventh-largest state in the United States; 78.9 per cent of the land area is owned by the federal government. In shape the state resembles a rectangle with the lower left part sheared off diagonally; its extreme dimensions are 777 km (483 mi) from north to south and 517 km (321 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from 143 m (470 ft) along the Colorado River in the southernmost part of the state to 4,005 m (13,140 ft) from the top of Boundary Peak on the California boundary. The approximate mean elevation is 1,676 m (5,500 ft).

Industries: Nevada has a great diversity of mineral resources, with mining accounting for 5 per cent of the annual gross state product. In the 1990s Nevada was the nation's leading producer of gold and silver; other major mineral deposits included copper, oil, and lead. Other minerals include zinc, manganese, mercury, magnesium, molybdenum, tungsten, sand, gravel, clays, and barite. There are also significant amounts of gypsum and salt.

Farming accounts for about 1 per cent of the annual gross state product. Cattle- and sheep-raising is especially important in the north-east; poultry and dairy farms are mainly near Las Vegas and Reno. Principal crops are hay and potatoes, wheat, barley, vegetables, fruit, nuts, and cotton.

Manufacturing accounts for 4 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading manufacturing industries produce printed materials, precision instruments, stone, clay and glass products, and industrial equipment. Also of importance are food processing and the manufacture of rubber and plastics, primary metals, timber and wood products, and chemicals.
