Capital: Trenton Time: GMT - 5

Background: New Jersey entered the Union on December 18, 1787, as the third of the original 13 states. During the American War of Independence, it had been the scene of several important events, including George Washington's crossing of the Delaware in December 1776 to defeat the British at Trenton, now the state capital. Manufacturing became the leading economic activity of the state in the late 19th century, and in the 1990s New Jersey was also known for its coastal resorts, productive farms, and burgeoning service sector. President Grover Cleveland was born in New Jersey, and President Woodrow Wilson spent most of his adult life here. The state is named after the island of Jersey, in the English Channel, the birthplace of Sir George Carteret, who in 1644 became a part-owner of what is now New Jersey. New Jersey is known as the "Garden State". Its major cities are Trenton (the capital), Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Elizabeth, and Edison.

Population: According to the 1990 census, New Jersey had 7,730,188 inhabitants, an increase of 5 per cent over 1980. The estimated population for 1997 was 8,052,849. The average population density of 363 people per sq km (941 per sq mi) is the highest of the 50 states. Whites made up 79.3 per cent of the population and blacks 13.4 per cent; additional population groups included some 79,440 people of Asian Indian background, 59,084 people of Chinese origin, 53,146 people of Filipino descent, 38,540 people of Korean extraction, 17,253 people of Japanese ancestry, and 14,500 Native Americans. Approximately 739,900 people, or about 9.6 per cent of the population, were of Latino (primarily Puerto Rican and Cuban) background.

Location: New Jersey, one of the mid-Atlantic coast states of the United States, bordered on the north-east by New York State; on the east by the Atlantic Ocean; on the south by Delaware; and on the west and north-west by Pennsylvania. The Hudson River forms part of the state's boundary with New York; Delaware Bay and the Delaware River form the boundary with Delaware; and the Delaware River forms the Pennsylvania boundary.

Area: New Jersey has an area of 21,277 sq km (8,215 sq mi); 3.4 per cent of its land area is owned by the federal government. The state's extreme dimensions are 270 km (168 mi) from north to south and 92 km (57 mi) from east to west. Elevations range from sea level, along the Atlantic Ocean, to 550 m (1,803 ft), at the top of High Point in the north. The approximate mean elevation is 76 m (250 ft). New Jersey's coastline is 209 km (130 mi) long.

Industries: New Jersey has substantial deposits of several minerals such as stone (including granite, limestone, marble, and slate), sand and gravel, clay, peat, zircon, zinc, iron ore, and marl.

Farming contributes less than 1 per cent of the annual gross state product, but some agricultural commodities are produced in sizeable quantities. New Jersey usually ranks among the top 20 US states in the combined production of tomatoes and other vegetables. Principal crops are greenhouse and nursery products (especially commercial flowers), soya beans, hay, potatoes, aubergines, onions, peppers, beans, asparagus, apples, cranberries, blueberries, and strawberries. Major livestock and livestock products include dairy goods, chicken eggs, beef cattle, pigs, and turkeys. Although fishing is not a major industry it contributes nearly $80 million to the state's economy. Most of the catch consists of shellfish such as clams, crab, lobster, oysters, and scallops, and salt-water fish such as menhaden, fluke, swordfish, tuna, flounder, bluefish, and mackerel.

New Jersey's manufacturing sector accounts for more than 18 per cent of the annual gross state product. It is one of the leading states in chemical production—products include petrochemicals, pharmaceuticals, and basic chemicals such as sulphuric acid.

Other manufactured goods include printed materials, industrial machinery, precision instruments, electronic equipment, processed food products, clothing and textiles, pottery and fine china, glass and paper goods.
