Capital: Raleigh Time: GMT - 5

Background: North Carolina entered the Union on November 21, 1789, as the 12th of the 13 original states. It was principally a farming state until the 1920s, when such manufactures as textiles, furniture, and tobacco products began to dominate the economy. Manufacturing and services (including tourism) remained pivotal to the economy in the early 1990s, and agriculture and forestry were also important. Two 19th-century US presidents, James K. Polk and Andrew Johnson, were born in the state, and another, Andrew Jackson, was born in the border area between North and South Carolina. North Carolina is named after Charles I and Charles II of England. North Carolina is known as the "Tar Heel State" and the "Old North State". Its major cities are Raleigh (the capital), Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, and Durham.

Population: According to the 1990 census, North Carolina had 6,628,637 inhabitants, an increase of 12.7 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 7,425,183. In 1990 the average population density was 49 people per sq km (126 per sq mi). Whites made up 75.6 per cent of the population and blacks 22 per cent; additional population groups included some 79,825 Native Americans, 9,847 people of Asian Indian background, 8,859 people of Chinese extraction, 7,267 people of Korean descent, and 5,332 people of Filipino ancestry. North Carolina had the largest Native American population of any state east of the Mississippi River; the Cherokee and Lumbee are the state's principal Native American groups. Approximately 76,700 people in North Carolina were of Latino background.

Location: North Carolina, one of the Atlantic coast states of the United States, bordered on the north by Virginia; on the east by the Atlantic Ocean; on the south by South Carolina and Georgia; and on the west by Tennessee.

Area: North Carolina has an area of 136,420 sq km (52,672 sq mi); 7.1 per cent of its land area is owned by the federal government. The extreme dimensions of North Carolina are 809 km (503 mi) from east to west and 301 km (187 mi) from north to south. Elevations range from sea level, along the Atlantic Ocean, to 2,037 m (6,684 ft), from the top of Mount Mitchell in the western part of the state. The approximate mean elevation is 213 m (700 ft). North Carolina has a coastline of 484 km (301 mi).

Industries: Among the most important minerals are limestone, phosphate rock, sand and gravel, kaolin, clay, granite, feldspar, talc, lithium, mica, olivine, asbestos, pyrophyllite, and various gemstones.

Farming is an important segment of the economy. Leading agricultural commodities are tobacco, broiler chickens, beef cattle, chicken eggs, pigs, turkeys, corn, soya beans, peanuts, and dairy products. North Carolina typically leads the nation in annual tobacco and sweet potato production, and ranks third in peanut production. Other crops are wheat, beans, tomatoes, hay, apples, and peaches.

North Carolina's extensive forests are the source of a large annual harvest of timber, used primarily in paper and furniture production, and in housing construction.

The annual fishing catch has a value of approximately $71 million. Major species taken are menhaden, edible shellfish (especially shrimp), and flounder.

In the late 1980s, manufacturing accounted for 30 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading manufactured goods include clothing, textiles (North Carolina is the leading textile-producing state), industrial machinery, electronic equipment, and processed foods. Other major manufactures include pharmaceuticals, rubber and plastic materials, and paper and paper products.
