Capital: Nashville Time: GMT – 5

Background: Tennessee entered the Union on June 1, 1796, as the 16th state. Many battles of the American Civil War were fought there. Tennessee had an agricultural economy until the mid-20th century, when service industries and manufacturing became predominant. Nashville, the state's capital, is noted as a centre of country and western music, and Memphis, its largest city, was a major site for the development of blues and jazz music. The city of Oak Ridge is a leading centre for the research and development of nuclear power. Presidents Andrew Jackson, James Polk, and Andrew Johnson lived in Tennessee. The name of the state is taken from the Tennessee River, the name of which is derived from that of a Cherokee village. Tennessee is called the "Volunteer State". Its major cities are Nashville (the capital), Memphis, Knoxville, Chattanooga, and Clarksville.

Population: According to the 1990 census, Tennessee had 4,877,185 inhabitants, an increase of 6.2 per cent over 1980. The population estimate for 1997 was 5,368,198. The average population density in 1990 was 45 people per sq km (116 per sq mi). Whites made up 83 per cent of the population and blacks 16 per cent; additional population groups included 9,859 Native Americans, 5,911 people of Asian Indian background, 5,653 people of Chinese descent, 4,508 people of Korean ancestry, 3,440 people of Japanese extraction, 3,032 people of Filipino descent, and 2,062 people of Vietnamese origin. Approximately 32,700 people were of Latino background.

Location: Tennessee (state), one of the eastern states of the United States, bordered on the north by Kentucky and Virginia; on the east by North Carolina; on the south by Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi; and on the west by Arkansas and Missouri. The Mississippi River forms the western boundary.

Area: Tennessee has an area of 109,155 sq km (42,145 sq mi); 5.1 per cent of its land area is owned by the federal government. The state is roughly rhomboid in shape, and its extreme dimensions are 790 km (491 mi) from east to west and 185 km (115 mi) from north to south. Elevations range from 56 m (182 ft), along the Mississippi River, to 2,025 m (6,643 ft), from the top of Clingmans Dome, in the east. The approximate mean elevation in the state is 274 m (900 ft).

Industries: Mining accounts for less than 1 per cent of the annual gross state product. Among the most important minerals are bituminous coal, phosphate rock, gemstones, limestone, cement, sand and gravel, copper, silver, clay, natural gas, and oil. The state also ranks high among the US states in the output of marble, and, along with Missouri, is a leading producer of zinc.

Agriculture contributes about 1.5 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading commodities are cattle and calves, dairy products, pigs, broiler chickens, and chicken eggs. (The Tennessee walking horse is also raised in the Nashville area.) Soya beans are the most valuable crop, followed by tobacco, hay, cotton, corn, wheat, sorghum, beans, tomatoes, apples, and peaches.

Forests cover nearly half of the state. The most important commercial tree varieties are hickory, yellow pine, red and white oak, and tulip poplar. The manufacture of timber and wood products, wooden household furniture, and paper and paper products is of major economic importance.

The state's large lakes and its many small streams offer excellent opportunities for recreational fishing. The size of the commercial catch is small; however, the raising of catfish and trout is important on some farms.

Manufacturing accounts for about 24 per cent of the annual gross state product. Leading manufactured goods include chemicals, clothing and textiles, industrial machinery, transport equipment, processed foods, cars, electronic equipment, paper products, printed materials, and primary metals. Tennessee is one of the leading US states in the production of aluminium.
